Co. Families Saving More

(Special to the Times-Virginian)
NEW YORK — Residents of Appomattox County are living well within their means. They are spending much less than they ar arning.

Some of the surplus is being used by them to reduce their installment debt. The remainder, or a considerable part of it, is going into savings.

The evidence is seen in the rise in bank deposits and in savings and loans accounts and in the gap between family income and family expenditures.

The finding arises from a study of consumer debt in the United States, made by economist Sidney Weintraub on the basis of data compiled by the Department of Commerce, the Federal Reserve System and others.

For families in most income levels, it appears, the rate of saving was higher than usual in the past year. Those with net, after-tax earnings of $3,000 were at the low...est end of the savings scale. They put aside less than 2.5 percent of that amount, on average, in the year.

Families with $6,000 net saved about 5 percent. The rate rose rapidly as incomes advanced to the higher levels.

How much have Appomattox County families been saving?

On the basis of their average disposal income of $3,727 per household, as reported in the latest annual survey, at the rate of 3.3 percent. They put aside an estimated $120 per household in the year. Implied is that the local rate, for each income group is similar to what it is in the rest of the country.

Taking into account all families in Appomattox County, the grand total of savings locally in the course of the year came to some $290,000.

This money, together with what had been accumulated previously, represents a huge reservair of pent-up buying power.

What caused people to become so saving-conscious? The answer is that saving was not their chief purpose. Their intention was merely to hold back on big-ticket spending until the economic uncertainties, both in this country and abroad, became resolved. The restrained spending resulted in greater savings.

Woman's Club

The Woman's Club of Appomattox met on Feb. 8th, in the High School Cafeteria. The guest speaker was Dr. Francis Simpkins of Longwood College. His topic was "The Everlasting South".

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. H. Y. Spencer, Mrs. James McDearmon, Mrs. Harry Davis and Mrs. Carroll Smith.

Heart Fund Sunday This Week-end

Shown in picture: Dr. Jack Matthews, member of the Piedmont Heart Association Special Projects Committee, presenting resuscitator donated by the Piedmont Heart Association to Captain Kenneth Jamerson, Captain of the Appomattox County Rescue Squad. Ivey Holland, who heads the local Heart Fund project joins in the presentation.

HEART ASSOCIATION PROVIDES EQUIPMENT FOR RESCUE SQUAD HERE

Recently the Piedmont Heart Association provided a resuscitator to the Appomattox County Rescue Squad along with two specially motivated stretchers for the rescue unit. The approximate value of this equipment is about $600.00.

The donation of this equipment along with other items furnished by the Piedmont Heart Association to Appomattox County is indicative of the use of your dollars contributed during the Heart Fund Drive. Since heart and allied diseases are the largest cause of death in Appomattox County, it is in the interest of all people to make as generous contribution as possible to this worth-while project.

Sunday, February 25, has been designated as Heart Sunday, at which time heart volunteers will call on as many families as possible in Appomattox, Evergreen, Spout Spring, and Pamplin to secure their contributions. Churches outside the above areas are requested to take such measures as they may deem to give their congregations an opportunity to contribute. Any contributions received can be turned over to Ivey Holland, Chairman of Fund Raising in Appomattox.

Please remember this year's Heart Fund slogan: "The more you give, the more will live."

Jail At Old Court Puzzels Park Officials

National Park Service officials today asked the help of interested citizens in solving the riddle of the old County Jail at the Surrender grounds.

Plans call for renovating this interesting old building as part of this Park's Mission 66 Program. This is in preparation for the 100th Anniversary of the Surrender in 1865. The grim and forbidding structure has long been a favorite attraction with visitors. Yet, before spending funds to renovate the building, a thorough investigation is required to establish its historic integrity. The search for this vital information, dating back to 1940 when the Park was established, has produced little of value.

Here are the facts. This Jail seems to be the second built by Appomattox County. Under the 1819 Revised Code of the Laws of Virginia, Appomattox could not have become a county without erecting and maintaining a jail. During the period of the formation of the county (September 1845) an article appeared in the Lynchburg Virginian inviting bids on two proposed types of bids. An 1845 lithograph of the Court House pictures a partially obscured two story brick building in the Beal Ferguson's yard corner of the county plot. There would be little need for any other public structure here, other than a jail. This same photograph also conclusively disproves the existence of the present jail in 1865. If any part of it existed on April 9, 1865, it could only have been a limited portion of the foundatio s.

Opposed to these few facts are many questions. When was the first jail erected? Why was it replaced by a second jail? What happened to the first jail? When was the second jail erected?

Several obvious answers immediately present themselves concerning the fate of the original jail. First, it burned down; second, it became so dilapidated, it was cheaper to replace than to repair; or, third, it was too small and had to be enlarged. Considering the financial condition of Virginia after the War, it seems unlikely that any project involving public funds would have been under taken unless absolutely necessary. In this case, it would seem that the likely fate of the Jail was burning. This was partially substantiated by a limited archeological investigation. At this time, evidence of a burned brick building was discovered in the area of the 1865 building. One local inhabitant remembered a pile of bricks in the same area further corroborating the theory. The tradition that the Jail was begun in 1860, and not finished until 1870, could fit into this theory. The original Jail could have been inadequate and have been deteriorating rapidly prior to the War.

To alleviate this situation a project could have been undertaken to construct a new Jail. With the coming of the War, the project would have been suspended. Then, in the post-war period the old Jail could have burned, forcing immediate resumption of construction regardless of the expense. Because of the scarcity of funds, the construction could have been completed in stages. This is probable if one considers the six distinct types of brickwork in the building. The father of Mr. Duval Conner and his uncle did the work on the distinct white-striped layers of brick on the upper portion of the second story. This was sometime after their return from the War.

Just when the second Jail was completed can not be definitely established. It was not standing in 1865, though workmust have begun before too many years were passed. Still, as late as 1869, Prince Edward County sent prisoners into Lynchburg for confinement because their Jail was insecure. It would seem that they would have used Appomattox's sturdy jail, if available, and saved the additional 25 miles to Lynchburg. There were, and are, a number of persons who recall this Jail in the 1880's, some of them even going to a school conducted in the west room. The Jail was used at least until 1894, as a place of confinement for the prisoners of the County. From the above facts, it is easy to see that little is known concerning the Jail. The County records, the usual source of such information, were destroyed in the Court House fire in 1892. The Lynchburg Newspapers of the period were also checked with the hope that they would contain articles concerning the Jail. Current leads, no matter how small, have been tracked down with no appreciable results. In connection with this research, it was felt that perhaps someone might have information necessary to solve this riddle. Superintendent Norris has asked that anyone who knows of the existence of any newspaper article, letter, diary, or family story or legend which may provide information, get in touch with the Park. This may be done by writing or calling the National Park Service, Appomattox, Virginia.

1962 FEED GRAIN PROGRAM

The advantages of participating in the 1962 feed grain program were outlined recently by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, in kick-off meetings before State ASCS farmer - committeemen and others charged with the administration of the program. By participating in 1962, the Secretary said, farmers will:

Continue to reduce the costly pile-up of feed grains in government ownership.

Take better care of our national soil and water resources by applying needed conservation measures on cropland taken out of intensive corn, grain sorghum, and barley production.

Save dollars for every citizen through further reductions in government cost of storing, shipping, and handling government - owned grains.

Get income immediately at sign-up time if they wish.

Save a large part of the planting and harvesting costs on the acreage put into conserving use.

Be assured of price support on their 1962 production at rational average prices of $1.20 per bushel for grain sorghum, and 93 cents per bushel for barley.

Local sign-up of farmers to take part in the 1962 feed grain program is now under way at ASCS county offices. It will extend through March 30.

Monogram Club Of A.H.S

The Monogram Club of Appomattox High School held a regular meeting February 8 in the auditorium. Sandra Trent presided at the meeting. After the reading of the minutes an roll call, there was a panel discussion on sportsmanship. Members participating in the program were Doris Martin, Nancy Jo Kidd, Pat Thomas, Virginia Caldwell, James Whitehead, and Barry Beale.

Money for senior sweaters is being raised by means of an "Ugly Man Contest." After all business was taken care of, the meeting was adjourned.
